

POLE YARDS AT NEW LENOX CLOSE

SNOW PILES UP; MERCURY FALLS

The weather, which is always an interesting subject, has been unusually interesting for the past few days, with record snowfall and low temperatures for this time of year in this area.

With some of the roads gazed with a coating of ice and others heavily covered by drifting snow, all traffic has been hazardous and slow.

Temperatures, as low as 18 degrees below zero, were reported here Wednesday morning. Radio broadcasts have been warning of bad roads, and have advised residents to put feed out for the birds. Conservationists are asking farmers to remember pheasants with grain to replace the seeds and berries covered by the heavy snows.

Roads are being opened as fast as possible.

Fewer accidents are being reported, due, say the experts, to the necessity for slower driving, at least one good point, out of all the inconveniences caused by the thermometer's ups and downs.

New Co-Sponsor For Weatherman TV Broadcast

Clint Yule's 10-minute Weatherman show over WNBQ will be co-sponsored by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois and beginning Wednesday, January 3 it is announced.

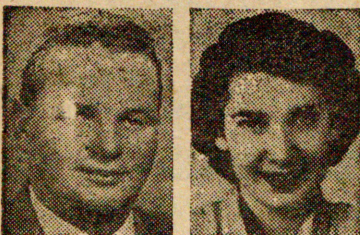

This increasingly popular video show is being sponsored by the two companies at 10 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays in the Chicago area, where in a 50-mile radius, more than 800,000 television sets are now in use. Ceresota Flour, which formerly sponsored the program five days a week, will continue to sponsor it on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Clint Yule is joined by his wife, the former Chere Jeanne Eadie, in presenting the breezy, informal show. Featured is Clint's easy-to-understand explanation of the weather and what makes it good, bad or indifferent. Clint's wife helps on the commercials and discusses home making problems.

Clint gets his technical data from the U. S. Weather Bureau in Chicago before every show and then translates it into every day language using a large map as a back-drop. His technical knowledge which stems from his Air Force meteorology training during World War II, has obviously helped him successfully forecast the weather, so much so, in fact, that most of the Chicago papers now carry detailed weather maps similar to those he employs on the show.

Clint won't go out on a limb on his forecasts beyond 24 to 48 hours but like weathermen from time immemorial, he gets gripes when Mother Nature changes her mind.

Illinois Winners in 4-H Leadership

Wayne D. Ryan, Rosemary Archibald

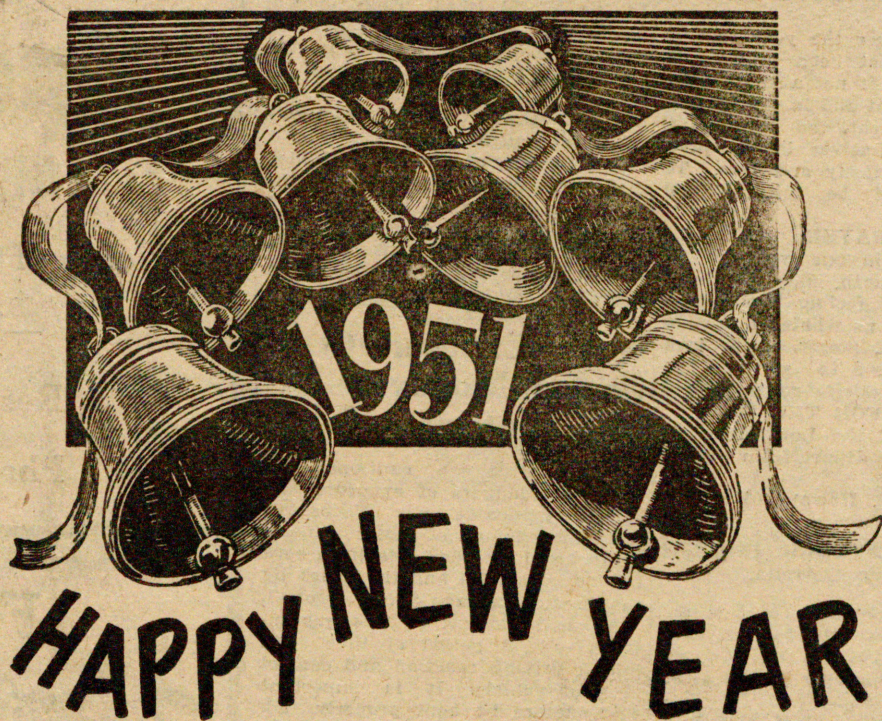

OUTSTANDING leadership in club and community brought state honors to Wayne D. Ryan, 19, of Tonic, and Rosemary Archibald, 20, of Joliet.

A 4-H'er for 10 years, Wayne's leadership has helped to raise the standard of living in his village and surrounding community. With their parents club members helped to develop the La Salle County 4-H Home, Inc., a 2-acre tract used for recreation and project development. Purchasing and developing better livestock, the community has become a leader in purebred cattle, hogs and sheep. The clubs have cooperated in the purchase of a new truck and remodeling an old church to be used for the local fire department headquarters. He is now enrolled at the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture.

Rosemary has been a Club member nine years, and has done an excellent job as junior leader for eight separate clubs, one of which included 33 girls, all under 13 years old. Rosemary has served as counsellor and recreation leader at district camp. She is treasurer of the 4-H house at the University of Illinois, where she is now in her senior year. Last year she was elected to Mortar board, the most coveted award on campus, based on high scholarship as well as activity work.

A handsome gold watch appropriately inscribed was presented to each by Edward Foss Wilson, president of Wilson and Co., meat packer, Chicago.

This program is conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.

Let the bells ring out their welcome for 1951. Let us all greet this new hope with sincere wishes for all of our friends and neighbors. Let this New Year bring the blessings of peace and security to our world. Let happiness and health rule in all of our homes. Our sincerest greetings to all of you.

Both had corsages of yellow roses.

Edward Matousek, served the groom as best man and the bride's brother, Roy, was an attendant. For the wedding, the bride's mother was dressed in navy crepe with white accessories and the groom's mother wore toast crepe with brown accessories. Their corsages were of American Beauty roses.

About 150 guests, several from Mokena, attended the reception held in the home of the bride's parents. The table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, and was lighted with white tapers. It was decorated with holly and white mums. A smorgasbord supper was served to the guests.

Miss Alma L. Anderson, daughter of the late Bartel Anderson, and formerly a resident of Alpine, and Paul P. Bakshas, son of Mrs. Augusta Newlin, of Lewiston, Montana, were united in marriage Thursday afternoon, December 7, at 2 o'clock in the Trinity Lutheran church of Seattle. The Rev. E. Schwidder officiated at the private ceremony.

The bride wore a cream colored silk faille dress and an orchid corsage. She carried a white Bible.

After a motor trip, through Washington, Idaho and Montana the couple will make their home at 1509 9th avenue, Seattle, Wash.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Bakshas was employed as secretary to the credit manager of Frederick and Nelson, a division of Marshall Field and company, for the past three years. Prior to this she lived in Chicago for 11 years and worked for Uarco, Incorporated.

If We Could See Their Happy Faces—

Twelve little boys and girls, all orphans remained standing forlornly on the wharf looking longingly at the big hulk of the Prins Willem III wondering what its mysterious interior looked like while stevedores clamored aboard the big ocean freighter following the joyous yet solemn ceremony welcoming the arrival of the Friendship Food Ship to Bremen, Germany. The ship had sailed from the Port of Chicago on United Nations Day commemorating its Fifth Anniversary.

Said Dr. McBride, representative of the High Commissioner for Germany in his talk:

"Above all the MS Prins Willem III with its cargo of 60 carloads of food from a land of plenty to areas of need, is a ship of neighborly love. Man does not live from bread alone. The farmer who is blest with abundance must also know how to share that abundance with those in need."

He recounted CROP's outstanding history and honored the farmers of the 17 states who had contributed to the shipment. He particularly mentioned the states of Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, South Dakota, North Dakota, Ohio, Texas, and Wisconsin whose contributions were carried by the ship.

As the clanking unloading machinery was set in motion and the cranes and winches broke the stillness of the morning by their sudden din, a little twelve-year old refugee girl from the East as the leader of these forgotten orphans took them in hand and with a disappointed sigh, the little group moved away from the wharf. . . . they had so wanted to see the inside of that big ship which had carried the gifts of food from America. As they approached a policeman, the forlorn twelve-year old asked, "Mister Is there some place where we can get warm before we leave?"

The kindly policeman's eyes quickly took in the situation. Seeing the dozen ill-clad children shivering in the cold and being Chief of the Harbor Detachment he took them to the First Officer of the Prins Willem who took them on board and fulfilled their fondest wishes of making a tour of the ship. The story ends happily for not only were they given a hearty breakfast, but their bodies were warmed and their hearts were made happy by their having been taken on a tour of the Friendship Ship.

As Illinois' CROP's solicitation had not as yet been made at the time of the sailing of the Prins Willem, Illinois' contribution to the Friendship Ship was a token gift of one carload of soybeans.

Wayfarers to Elect Officers for 1951

The first annual meeting of the Mokena Wayfarers club will be held on Friday, December 29 at 7:45 pm, sharp.

Reports from all officers, elected and appointed will be read.

The business of the annual meeting will be the election of officers for the coming year. The Woman's Auxiliary to the club will be formed and all of the members wives are urged to attend.

After the transaction of the business the Wayfarers will hold a post Christmas social. All members, their wives and families should plan now to attend. They will have entertainment and the ladies will serve refreshments.

John C. Jahnke, who has served as president of the Wayfarers club since it was organized this year is active in many groups. He was recently reelected president of the Royal Arch Masons and has been elected master of Imperial Council No. 85 of Chicago.

When the year 1950 goes down into history, it will take with it a long established business in New Lenox, the Western Union Telegraph company pole yard at Brisbane.

The pole yards was started in 1907 as a supply yard for untreated northern cedar poles and covered an area of 17 acres which included the driveway from the highway, building and railroad tracks. Mr. A. C. Eisenhuth was superintendent of the plant.

The yards was converted into an open tank cresoate treating plant in 1921-22 at a cost of around $100,000. Treating of the poles started in the spring of 1923 at which time Mr. Eisenhuth retired and was succeeded by A. K. Swanson.

Everyone in the New Lenox territory knew about the pole yards at Brisbane, which is a short distance south of the village, and on the Wabash railroad. Over this road many poles have been shipped.

During the peak of the operation there, 1924-1926, there were between 40 and 60 men employed, mostly from New Lenox. The yard carried a stock of 40,000 chestnut poles; 50,000 northern cedars and 15,000 western red cedar poles. The records of the company reveal that around 110,000 poles were received, treated and shipped, during those years, for pole line construction for the Western Union Telegraph company.

The demand for treated poles started to lessen as far back as 1927 and it was no longer economical to continue operations and the decision was reached to close the Brisbane yard at the end of this year.

Because of more scientific methods of transmitting messages, such as the micro wave, using steel towers 35 to 75 miles apart which can simultaneously transmit 12,000 messages each way, poles with wires are becoming obsolete. It is interesting to note that electrical storms and winds do not interfere with the micro waves. It is understood that sites for these towers have been purchased across the country.

Thus it can be understood why the demand for poles and treating them has declined. And with this decline what once was an interesting and useful industry in New Lenox is now a thing of the past.

"... of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen." (Romans 11:36) Read Romans 11:33-36. The majesty of God does not depend on our understanding of Him. His power is not dependent upon our ability to comprehend it. We trace His hand of love in the beauty of land, sea and sky. We see His watchful care in the lives of those whom we love and in our own lives. Best of all, we know Him through the life of Christ. Yet above and beyond all that we know of God, we cannot begin to fathom His infinite power, wisdom and love. These facts make us humble. They also give us confidence. The way of a man's life when lived well is not with himself but with God's infinitely wise plan for that life. We can seek God's will for our lives. He will make it known to us. Look back over the year that is past. Has it not been proved in your life? Will it not also be proved in the present and in the future? God is so great, so wonderful! We humble ourselves in the presence of His majesty and love. To Him we would be faithful and obedient.

PRAYER

Our Father, in our weakness be Thou our strength. May we have the blessing of feeling Thy guidance. Grant to us whatever portion of Thy wisdom, power, and love we this day need to serve Thee best. In the Master's name. Amen.

Shorthorn Victory Smile

LOUISVILLE, KY.—This achievement keynotes the increased interest in Shorthorn cattle in Kentucky which will play host to the International Blue Grass Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn Futurity to be held here on June 11 and 12. Over 200 head of the most outstanding Shorthorns and Polled Shorthorns from all over America have been nominated for this event.

The above Shorthorn steer, Beacon's Pride, shown by Kenneth Reed, Midway, Ky., was named the Grand Champion steer at the 1950 Louisville Fat Stock show held here. Entered in the show, probably the world's largest youth show, were 1,600 other steers.

Kenneth's steer was sold to Henry Fischer, Fischer Packing company, Louisville, for $8 per pound, an all time high record price paid for a steer at the Louisville show. The steer, purchased by Kenneth from the Brown-Forman Experimental Farm, Prospect, Ky., for $150, brought a total of $8,600 to his owner when he tipped the scales at 1,075 pounds.

The champion, a roan steer, was sired by Creifvechter Beacon, the nationally known imported Shorthorn bull, and was out of Maxwell Beauty 2nd, member of a long famous line of dams in the Shorthorn breed. Garvey Haydon, now a sheep buyer, watched Kenneth win the same award he had won 25 years ago with another Shorthorn steer. Haydon's steer sold for the then fabulous price of $1.25 per pound.

Confections Used 500 Years Ago

The little sugar-coated pill has come a long way.

A penny's worth of candy used to keep a youngster happy for quite a while. And an old-fashioned "taffy pull" was lots of work, but well worth it. It's a different story today. The national sweet tooth has come into its own, and Grandma's ruddy kettle has turned into a $365,000,000 a year business.

It all really started some 500 years ago in the English Apothecary shops, ancestors of our drug stores. About that time, according to the World Book Encyclopedia, apothecaries began using sugar to coat their pills. Before long, the sugar-coated medicine became so popular that the medicine was left out and the pills were manufactured with sugar only.

Descendants of the old English medicated sweetmeats can now be bought in more than two thousand different forms or varieties. Candy counters and sweetshops in the United States sell over two billion pounds of confections.

Avoid Exposure to Carbon Monoxide Gas, Motorists Told

All motorists are cautioned to avoid the dangers of exposure to carbon monoxide gas discharged from the exhaust of motor vehicles as the cold weather sets in, according to a special bulletin issued by the Greater Chicago Safety Council. A small amount of this gas inhaled over a period of time will impair driving reaction and control of your vehicle. It is important that motorists be kept properly adjusted in reference to combustion and that exhaust lines be kept tight in order that this gas may not escape into the truck or car. Avoid idling motors in closed garages or remaining in a parked car with the motor running, particularly if the windows are closed, the bulletin warned.

Carbon monoxide gas is colorless odorless and tasteless. It is usually only detected by its reaction on an individual exposed to it. Symptoms which indicate this gas is present are dizziness, headaches, nausea, weakness, smarting of eyes, palpitation of the heart, drowsiness or complete collapse.

If any of these reactions are detected, the individual should get to fresh air immediately. If he cannot do so alone, others should help him. In case of collapse, give artificial respiration at once, and send for a physician, the bulletin concludes.

Bussing Under Mistletoe From Old Pagan Customs

The ancient Druids emphatically established that a good idea can live forever. If any better proof is needed, simply stand under the mistletoe this New Year.

So advises Don Fowler, Davey tree researcher, who traces the mistletoe custom back to the oak-worshipping Druids who believed the spirit of the oak took refuge in the mistletoe during the winter. Druids took the mistletoe into their homes that the grateful spirit in the tree might bring them good fortune. From this practice the mistletoe finally became part of modern Yuletide custom.

The Norse, too, believed the mistletoe sacred. In the old Norse legend, Balder, the pagan god of light and peace, was killed by a mistletoe dart and lay dead through the Winter darkness. When he was revived, the mistletoe promised it would never do injury to anyone so long as it did not touch the earth, but instead, was allowed to hang, like the spirit, between earth and heaven. That is why it is usually suspended from doors or ceilings.

Bussing beneath the mistletoe continues as a pleasant diversion, long thought by ancients to bring happiness, safety and very good luck.

Early Christian churches adamant ly refused to let mistletoe be brought indoors, mainly because of its association with pagan practices and beliefs.

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

WE'VE been talking quality products for a good many years; and that means quality of milk and eggs, livestock and poultry. Competition is getting keener every day, but the man who produces quality is never penalized.

The sanitation program was emphasized during a conference I held recently with men who were attending the sheep-shearing contest at the recent International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago. We drifted from the subject of shearing sheep to the clipping of cows.

You all know that it's easier to command higher prices for clean milk from cows that are clipped. Sediment is one of the main causes for milk being rejected at the plant. And one way to reduce sediment is to keep the cows clean. This can be done, in part, by clipping.

Much of the sediment in milk comes from three main areas on the cow, especially where cows are milked by hand. These areas include the thighs, under and belly. Another always-existent dirt threat is the tail.

The tailhead and the tail should be clipped down to the switch. Then the switch should be clipped so that it clears the ground by four inches. The udder should be clipped thoroughly from the front to the rear attachment.

Next, the belly and hocks should be clipped clean, as well as the area behind a line drawn from the milk well over the thurl to the base of the tailhead.

Although a clipped cow doesn't guarantee clean milk, it does mean a great deal in the job of producing clean milk. Good milk producing practice should always include not only a thorough brushing before each milking, but also clean utensils and good straining.

Cost Cutting Production Methods Boost Yields Per Acre, Increase Farm Income

More Plant Food Made the Difference Between These Corn Crops.

KEEPING down crop producing costs is a mighty important matter these days. Prices of things farmers buy are going up, but farm income is lagging behind.

Purdue University economists say that the most important single factor controlling costs per bushel is a high yield per acre. Their research revealed that on corn, wheat, soybeans, hay and pasture the yield per acre had more influence in cutting costs per bushel than any other single production factor.

This was borne out by a survey of 134 farms in Southeastern Indiana. Here the economists found that farmers who ranked among the top third in corn yields had twice as much net income from their crop as farmers down at the bottom of the heap. For wheat, the top-yielding third had a net income 11 times greater per acre than the low one-third. The difference was three times for hay and seven times for soybeans.

The Middle West Soil Improvement Committee points out that when yields are high, a farmer is in better shape to make a profit in spite of rising costs or falling farm prices.

The way to get higher yields, it says, is to make every acre do a better crop producing job through good crop and soil-building methods. Such a program should include the use of plenty of a well-balanced fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash. It should include a good rotation in which well-fed deep-rooted legumes add organic matter and condition the soil for higher yields.

and in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. August Carlson and Clara joined them.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Scott were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James

Morgan at Joliet.

Buy Fertilizer Now

To Avoid Shortages

When Spring Comes

FERTILIZER shortages can be avoided next spring if farmers place their orders now and take delivery early, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in citing a recent statement by Dr. H. B. Cheney, extension agronomist at Iowa State College.

Cheney points out that railroad car shortages may restrict the movement of fertilizer next spring and it may be impossible to meet farmers' demands if they call for heavy deliveries over a short period of time.

"The outlook for fertilizer production is good this year," he said, "but if fertilizer producers run out of storage space, they will have to slow up production."

As a means of keeping plant food moving steadily, he advises farmers to make immediate arrangements for supplies and to store the plant food until it is time to use it next spring.

Cheney recommends a dry building with a wooden floor as the best storage place. If the fertilizer is stored on a concrete floor, a wooden platform should be built 4 to 8 inches above the floor. This will allow air circulation under the bags, which can be piled 8 to 10 bags high. Space should also be left between the wall of the building and the storage pile to provide for more circulation.

FIX-UP TIPS

For Farm and Home

Proper Care of Milk Cans

WHEN milk or cream is downgraded or rejected at market, the cause often can be traced to the condition of the dairy farmer's milk cans. Dented, battered old cans are a menace to the farmer's profits and should be discarded promptly.

Damage to the tin inner coating of milk cans many times is the result of bad washing practices on the dairy farm. Even though cans are washed at the dairy they must be washed also on the farm.

Observe these simple precautions for greatest safety: Use cleaning compounds exactly as recommended by the manufacturer. Be absolutely sure that all moisture is removed from cans after cleaning. Cans must be dry before covers are replaced.

Proper care of milk cans usually pays off in the form of larger milk checks. Other common-sense rules to observe in handling milk cans are these:

1. Carry cans to desired location; do not drop, throw or roll them.

2. Leave covers off empty cans when not in use.

3. Avoid scratching the insides of cans with stirring rods. It is vitally important to remove rods after stirring.

4. Do not allow sour contents to remain in cans for long periods.

5. Keep cans moving. Avoid long periods of storage and idleness.

6. Inspect cans regularly. If cans have been damaged so that their safety as sanitary containers is questionable, replace them with new cans.

TEN IMPORTANT ETIQUETTE CHANGES LISTED BY EMILY POST'S ASSISTANT

Anne Kent, personal assistant to Emily Post for more than 15 years, has listed for the December issue of Cosmopolitan magazine the ten most important changes in etiquette. Here they are:

1. First-name calling. Miss Kent finds no fault with this practice in circles where it's taken for granted. She says that position and age should be respected, and children shouldn't call adults by their first names.
2. Trousers on women. "Slacks are not incorrect dress for resort areas, sports, and lounging at home," says this expert, "but are improper for city wear. Of course," she adds, "the women are mistaken to wear them ever."
3. The younger set (past 40) after midnight. The modern young woman and her young man head for home alone or with other young friends, stopping off for a late snack.
4. Posture. "I don't believe we should revert to the ramrod stiffness of young women," says Miss Kent, "but a little more gracefulness of posture would eliminate a great American eyecore."
5. The typewriter supersedes the pen. The typewriter for personal correspondence is now not merely approved but favored. Formal notes, such as answers to formal invitations, should be penned by hand. And letters of sympathy seem warmer and more sincere if handwritten.
6. Manners after divorce. Years ago, divorced couples shunned each other. But today, many of them remain good friends or, at least, on speaking terms.

7. Women and nicotine. Sherry's, famous old New York society restaurant, forbade any woman to light a cigarette on the premises. The modern woman reaches for a cigarette almost whenever or wherever she has the whim.
8. Calling on new neighbors. This old American custom is vanishing, a casualty of World War II. Miss Kent believes that "people's instinctive kindness will eventually bring back the courtesy call."
9. Buffet meals replace big dinners. The modern hostess who gives a dinner party can prepare ahead of time, relax, and ask the guests to help themselves.
10. The decline of chivalry. Since gaining a more equal status with men, women no longer expect deference as the "weaker sex." Unless she's infirm or elderly, the modern woman must battle for a seat on the subway. And that old off-in-elevator rule has been completely revoked in business-building elevators.

According to Miss Kent, feminine independence has been paid for out of the currency of male chivalry. And many a woman seems to believe the purchase isn't worth the price.

ONCE THRIVING INDUSTRY —

Lenox for nearly half a century is passing into history.

Among the New Lenox people employed there during this period of time have been, besides those already mentioned, Ray Osmus, George Bethel, Thomas Cooper, Arthur Voss, William Drake and many others.

Mr. Swanson, the present foreman of the plant will retire on pension and will move with his family to Springfield, Arkansas; E. F. Strasburg, assistant foreman, will also retire on pension and he and his family will move to Mattland, Pa., and Christ M. Kruspe, engineer, also retires on pension. E. C. Sievert, another employee, will complete his service with the company at their warehouse at 5927 S. Western avenue, Chicago. The property is for sale.

The many friends of these New Lenox people regret having them leave the place where they have lived for many years, but wish them much happiness in their new home. These old employees of the pole yards also regret leaving their many friends, but the warm climate is most enticing.

Lesson for December 31, 1950

SCRIPTURE: John 15:1-10; Galatians 2:20, Philippians 3:8-16.
DEVOTIONAL READING: John 15:1-12

HOW does a Christian grow? During the past three months this has been our underlying question. Now at the year's end we come back to the point where we began: to Jesus Christ. When all is said and done, the best way to describe a Christian's life is not "religious" or "spiritual" or even "godly," much less "pious." The best way to describe it is to put the fullest possible meaning into the single word "CHRISTIAN."

"I Have Been Captured"

In your hymnal you may find a hymn by the author of the better-known "O Love that will not let me go." It begins with these lines:

"Make me a captive, Lord,

And then I shall be free . . ."

That sounds upside-down. Captive and free are opposites, aren't they? Not when God is the captor! The American translation of Phil. 3:12 says, "I have been captured by Jesus Christ." Paul's word was a strong one; it was the Greek word used when police or soldiers take a man and tie him and lead him off.

People who have gone far in music would understand this. Take two young people, both of whom know something about music, maybe both of them in the same music school. One of them has been captured, so to speak, by music; the other has not. That is to say, in plainer language, music has "got hold" of one of them. There is an irresistible fascination about music for him, every day is too short for the study and practice he wants to do. The other one goes through his lessons, but his heart is not in it.

We need no prophet to tell us which of the two will make a good musician. So it is with the Christian faith. One who has never been captured by Christ may play around with the Christian faith, as the uncaptured music student may play around the music school; but his heart will not be in it.

Name any saint you like in the whole history of Christendom, whether famous like St. Francis or Ballington Booth, or known only to a few, like one of your own family perhaps; you always find that this person, whose Christianity was a living and powerful thing, called Christ Master, and meant it.

"Christ Lives in Me"

THERE is a more intimate way of putting this. It is true, the Christian has been "captured" by Christ. But this would still leave him on the outside. Christ lives in the Christian, as Paul said. For some people this may seem strange and mystical, but it can be understood by anyone who wants to know what Christian living can mean.

Christ in the Christian means that in every situation, in every condition, at every turn of the road, in the everyday choices and conversations, the Christian will be as much like Christ as he possibly can. This is one point on which Christians of every name and church agree. Catholic or Protestant, conservative or liberal, our differences evaporate when our hearts are warm, when we try to think what the ideal Christian life is.

High-level Christians from all over Christendom would all come out with the same story that Paul put into classic words: I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me.

"Abide"

"A BIDE in me and I in you," said Jesus. That is a command and a promise. But the command comes first. Whether we think of the Christian as "in" Christ or Christ as "in" the Christian, it should be a long story, not a short one. Is the sunshine in the flower or the flower in the sunshine? Well, both. Put the flower in the sunshine and keep it there, and the sunshine will get into the flower. The sun makes the flower, not the flower the sun. Yet unless the flower stays in the sunshine, the sun can do nothing for it.

Christ never yet battered his way into any one's life. To know him as an occasional visitor is doubtless better than never knowing him at all. But friendship is far better than acquaintance, and to know him best one must know him always.

But the welcoming heart has him always for a guest. What 1951 will bring, no man can tell; but no friend of Christ will be afraid.

Name Illinois 4-H'er to Compete for National Honors in Recreation

THE National 4-H Recreation and Rural Arts program provides boys and girls with an opportunity to make new friends, have fun, learn new skills, share talent, and become leaders. It also provides a medium for home and community participation in sports, dancing, dramatics, singing, arts and crafts, and other activities.

Helen Wilson

Helen Wilson, 16, of Benson, was selected by the State Club Office for outstanding recreational leadership and achievement. Learning that all work and no play will make anyone dull, she charted a carefully planned course to bring recreation into the lives of fellow club members as well as the grown-ups in the community. Helen not only does excellent project work but also helps the younger girls in her club perfect theirs. She has taught folk dancing and songs to a group which has appeared on several county programs. Helen has an excellent singing voice and plays several musical instruments. She has performed as soloist and accompanist on many 4-H and community programs.

Her record will be judged for national honors, which includes a trip to the 1950 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, provided by the United States Rubber Company.

Annual awards of $25 were given to 20 counties on their overall recreational program as well as the records of their local 4-H Clubs. The award is used to buy recreational equipment.

This activity is conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.

International Good-Will

To celebrate Christmas, 1950, members of the International Club of Chicago's YMCA Hotel gather to decorate their traditional Christmas trees as a symbol of international good-will. Young men and women from far corners of the world, as well as young people from most of the 48 states, make the "Y" Hotel their home while continuing their studies at many of Chicago's universities and colleges. Students pictured represent the countries of Japan, West Africa, Ecuador, Austria and the U.S.A.
